The program encounters the past, present and future developments of privatization, the restructuring of national economies, newly created political structures and other international areas. Subject areas include language, management, law, history, culture, politics, trade practices, and economies of the vanguard countries, mainly the Czech Republic, Poland and Hungary. There are also studies concerning the states of the former Soviet Union. The program is enriched with field study tours and cultural activities. The Central and East European Studies Program is a self-financed program founded at the University of Economics Prague (UEP). All courses have been fully accredited after careful scrutiny and review by the Academic Accreditation Committee of the UEP. According to the (Czech Republic) Act no. 111 on Higher Education Institutions, UEP is accredited with Czech Ministry of Education for BSc, MSc and PhD level programs. The UEP is also a full member of CEMS (top 16 European Management Schools) and a full member of PIM. The program's mission is to educate students from countries throughout the world about the economies, societies and cultures of Central and East European countries. CESP has taught students from a diverse selection of countries such as Argentina, Austria, Bangladesh, Belarus, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hong-Kong, Iceland, India, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Romania, Russia, Spain, Sweden, The Netherlands, Turkey, United Arab Emirates, United States and Uruguay. The program's objective is to offer foreign students something they cannot receive from their home universities: the opportunity to reside in and experience the dynamic, exciting conditions in Central Europe. Professional insight and instruction are provided by native Czech professors and business professionals. The program strategy is to offer this experience through daily social interactions and course curriculum. Students completing the program will have accumulated considerable knowledge about Central and East European cultural attitudes and daily life.

The credits are transferred to the home university and it will be the responsibility of the home university to apply these credits towards the home university degree. The program will provide a certificate of accomplishment and an official transcript accredited by the UEP.

Students will be given advance notice of any changes.

Program Description:

Economics is a two-year English-language Master's degree programme fully accredited by the Czech Ministry of Education, which aims to give the student a thorough grounding in both theoretical and applied economics. It is taught at the Faculty of Social Sciences by members of the Institute of Economic Studies (IES).

From the very beginning, the instruction of economics at IES has been designed selectively for students who are capable of abstract analytical reasoning, and this programme is no exception. This emphasis, supported by a knowledge of mathematics, is one of the features that distinguish instruction at IES from other Czech economic schools of higher learning. Thus, the competitive edge of IES graduates is based not only on their managerial talent, but also on their analytical and reasoning abilities, and on having the necessary skills to solve problems individually in various environments. IES graduates continue to be in high demand and tend to be successful in both theoretical and practical fields (for example, in public administration, as capital market analysts in banks, investment companies, pension funds, etc.).

Instruction and supervision are provided by leading economists and professionals who are involved in both international economic research and in applied economic policy or advisory work for the government. Some staff have had a long career in finance, investment banking and portfolio management in North America. Overall, publication activity is one of the main criteria for evaluating the work of the faculty members.

School Description:

Charles University, the oldest in Central Europe, was founded in 1348 by the Holy Roman Emperor and Czech King Charles IV, in what is now the Old Town – the city centre and the oldest part of Prague. The only remaining original gothic building, the Karolinum, contains the University's administration and the Great Hall (Aula Magna). The rest of the university occupies historic buildings all over the city centre or newer buildings on the periphery.

The Faculty of Social Sciences was founded in 1990. It is currently the second youngest faculty of Charles University. Its main goal is to promote teaching and research in key fields of the social sciences: economics, sociology, political science, international relations, area studies, media studies and journalism. Although most of these disciplines were not developed properly (if at all) under Communism, in a relatively short time the Faculty has gained a considerable reputation for both its level of instruction and its research. It is now widely regarded as one of the top social sciences institutions in the country.

Today the faculty has more than 2400 full-time students, plus a floating population of about 150 visiting students per year. It is fair to say that we have students from most major language groups, and every continent except Australia and Antarctica!

Program Description:

International Economic and Political Studies is a two-year English-language Master's degree programme fully accredited by the Czech Ministry of Education, which seeks to investigate contemporary political, economic and social issues from a multidisciplinary perspective. Although the predominant emphasis is on approaches from economics and political science, students will also be expected to explore historical and sociological perspectives. And in a world of omnipresent media, basic techniques for the analysis of the media will also be emphasised.

Through the core courses, students will gain both the theoretical tools and the historical background to develop a deeper analysis of the world they live in, while through their elective classes (which they may choose from a wide range of up to 50 classes per semester), they are free to develop their own specialisation.

The programme is deliberately structured to take advantage of the multidisciplinary nature of the Faculty, and students will be encouraged to make connections between different fields of study, learning to combine a Global perspective with attention to detail and local interests. It is an excellent stepping stone in developing an academic career in any of the Faculty's academic disciplines, as well as a valuable source of analytical skills and practical background knowledge that can be applied in professional life.
